LATEST PARTICULARS.

We at a indebted to the Agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for the following, interesting particulars :-

The City of Rio struck an unknown rock of Cape Mono and was beached. The hole was patched up, and she proceeded slowly towards Nagasaki, where she was expected to arrive today. The cabin and steerage passengers, mails and treasure arrived at Nagasaki at o p.m. vesterday. She will probably be decked for temporary repairs at Nagasaki, and then complete her voyage to Hongkong.

Hicks' Oriole Specialty Company opened their season at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, last night to a crowded house, and made a most favorable impression by a performance conspicuous for its varied abilities. It is only necessary to say here that every act was received with vociferous appleuse, testifying to the genuine appreciation of the sydience. A detailed critique of this high-class entertainment will appear in our next issue. The performance this evening is billed for o o'clock, when no doubt the theatre will be crowded.

Some recode have an idea that ladies have naturally better "hands" than men. We believe this to be a fallacy. In a sense, from the fact that they are physically weaker, they may have lighter hands than men. There are extraordinary degrees of difference in Ab handling of the horse, even iff the cases of from who may be considered his declars horsemen A horse's mouth is, therefore, a make any particular rider, when it quality is cons par with that of the hands of the Year In question. Consequently, to the experienced horseman, nothing is so satisfactory washraking In his own horses. Their mouths then arrive at the quality of his bands cand, as far as he is concerned, their mouths are good. When a man purchases a horse, whose mouth is too soft for his hands, the mouth will gradually harden to the quality of the hands communicating with it. Or it is possible, if the rider be apt to learn, that his hands may improve in delicacy. Generally, there will be a give and take, an action and re-action, an improvement on the part of the one, and a deterioration on that of the anistic other, till both are equal. Per contra, a rider with fine hands will improve the mouth of a hard-mouthed horse, unless it be hopelessly ruined. We all know that many a so-called "incorrigible bolter" will go quietly enough in the hands of a fine horseman.

At every change of ownership, a horse has something to learn and something to unlearn and it is a matter of time before quadruped and bined arrive at a proper understanding of each other's peculiarities. A horse broken in by one man is rarely all that can be desired by another. Hence the pleasure of the knowledgable horsemand in training his colts and fillies for his own use. To those who are not sufficiently i experienced for this process, and who are beginning their acquaintance with horses, it is not of very material consequence what kind o mouth they have first to deal with, provided always that it is not too hard to be controlled with safety, or too soft to imperil the rider's seat. In the case of a beginner, the horse is practically the lutor; and the better its mouth, up to a certain point, the more chance of his ultimately acquiring "hands," if he have it in him at all, Next to riding a horse without reins at all, nothing so belos a tyro to a good west as a mount that objects to its mouth being touched. except in the very gentlest manner.

KISSING.

SHOULD IT BE ABOLISHED?"

Progress and science now propose to abolish the kiss. Will they succeed? Without doubt there is too much kissing done in the world the wrong people. There is a vast of mismating of lips about us. Women coress each other too promisand meaninglessly. Children are kissed too freely by relatives, friends, and strangers. I saw a pretty young lady taking leave of her summer friends last season and fully twenty women and children presented lips to her while the carriage waited to bear her There is no expression in a kiss of that It means nothing but a mere form on the part of the friends, while it means a trying ordeal for the poor victim. It is like tossing a delicate | Beremete rose from hand to hand in lieu of a playing bail. Temperature. A kiss upon the check given by one woman to another, or to children, is far more agreeable to the acting parties, and means just as much. It saves all danger of contracting throat diseases, and it renders an unpleasant breath less obnazious. Most people seem to think the matter of personal fragrance a settled one as far as they are concerned. I know a lady who insists always on kissing her friends upon the lips when she meets them. The o deal for her friends is a terrible one, yet not one of them has the heart to refuse the proffered caress or to give the cheek in place of the lips. It seems a misfortune that the lady has not the forethought to save her friends this experience. They would love her just as deeply, and thank her most feelingly if she pressed their hands merely and withheld her lips.

Parents ought to teach their children from their very earliest years to be chary of giving their lips. Parents themselves ought to avoid kissing infants on the mouth. The sweet checks, the dear little soft necks, the dimpled hands all offer tempting nooks for kisses without endangering the child's comfort or health. Imagine a father, whose breath was vile with stale tobacco-smoke, or fumes of whisky, press his mouth to that of a tiny infant, never thinking that the poor baby's lungs were being poisoned by the contact.

Parents have, as a rule, a most curlously unthinking way of bidding their children to "go and kiss the lady " or the gentleman caller. The child will shrink and hide its face, while the mother will urge and even command.

' A dainty little girl will be absolutely forced to offer her sweet mouth to brarded lips, and these unwise guardians seem to think the daily repetition of this act with every caller at the home a necessary part of the child's education.

Every man or woman of feeling longs to caress a beautiful child, as one longs to put a fragrant rose to the nestrile, but a tender gardener dors not allow every passer-by to freely handle his flowers.

The kiss on the lips was undoubtedly first invented by lovers, and should be consecrated to love's uses. It can never be abolished by fashion or science while hearts beat, veins tingle, and pulses throh with love's fires.

THE CHINA AND MANILA STEAMSHIP It is a spontaneous impulse of two fond beings drawn together by a mysterious attraction. Eloquent in its silence, it succeeds where words fail. Many a woman has had her heart revealed to her through a kiss, and in knowing when to give and when to withhold this favour, often lies the secret of winning or lesing.

As many prizes have been lost by the kiss too long wi hheld as by the one too easily given. To | Captain G. A. Tayler, will be despatched for the the woman the kiss means more, and less than above Port on SATURDAY, the 12th instant, It means to the min. The woman thinks the at 5 P.M. man who takes her lips has given his heart; but the man thinks only that she who has given her for Passengers and is fitted with the Electric lips will give herself as well. When the woman Light. finds her mietake she is disillusionised. When the man finds his, he is angry. When the thril of pleasure goes out of the kiss for two people, and it becomes a mechanical duty, love has departed. Felendship may bind them, respect may unite them, and sympathy render their association sweet and tender; but when lip no longer speaks to lip, in the wordless elequence of the kiss Cupid has sheathed his arrows and flown way.

· CHILDREN starving to death on account of their THE Company's Steamship inability to digest food will find a most marvellous food and remedy, in Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oll with Hypophosphites. Very palatable and easily digested. Read the follow above Ports on SUNDAY, the 13th instant, at ing testimonial :-- " I have prescribed 'Scott's Daylight, Emulsion in cases of children suffering from wasting and mal-nutrition and can report most favourably of its good eff ct; it has been in each case taken most readily."-W.
